Our Mission

The Hammond Human Relations Commission strives to insure for all citizens equal opportunity in education, employment, business opportunity, access to public accommodations and housing or other real property regardless of race, color, sex, religion, national origin, ancestry, place of birth, disability or familial status (housing only). The Commission will endeavor to improve relationships between persons of different races, creeds, nationalities, LGBT and disabilities within the City of Hammond. The Commission will work with all racial, ethnic, gender, disabled and religious groups to improve communication and understanding in order to eliminate discriminatory practices.

Were you refused a housing opportunity because of your race, age, sex, disability, religion, color, national origin, sexual orientation, or because you are pregnant or have children?

If you feel that you have experienced any of these discriminatory obstacles in renting, leasing, or purchasing a home, contact:
